Water, the Universal Solvent. Water is called the "universal solvent" because it is capable of dissolving more substances than any other liquid. This is important to every living thing on earth. It means that wherever water goes, either through the air, the ground, or through our bodies, it takes along valuable chemicals, minerals, and nutrients.

natural role solvent plays in mediating both kinetic and equilibrium processes. Here, we propose an analysis scheme for understanding the nature of solvent structure at a local level. We first calculate coarse-grained dipole vector fields for an explicitly solvated system simulated through molecular dynamics.
